

CHICAGO GIANTS DEFEAT GREY SOX

Taking advantage of a costly error by Outfielder Moss of the Grey Sox, the Chicago American Giants defeated the local aggregation Saturday by the score of six to four, the game being called in the sixth inning on account of rain. With the Grey Sox team leading in the fifth inning four to three, and the bases full Moss failed in right field to accept a low drive, and before the ball was returned to the infield, three Chicago players crossed home plate.

The two teams will play the final game this afternoon, play starting at 3:30 o'clock. One of the largest crowds of the season witnessed the game yesterday. In the last half of the sixth inning the Grey Sox team started an attack on Marshall, but the rain came and the game was called.
