

JIM BROWN.
CATCHER AMERICAN GIANTS.
The receiving of the great brother battery, Dave and Jim, is not only one of the most efficient ball receivers, but he has displaced enough all round ability to stamp him as the real find of the 1918 season.
Brown's efforts in utility roles is bound to create a decided impression upon some of the regulars, for with his ability to catch, throw, run, field and the readiness with which he absorbs the fine points of the game, it is certain that the big chief will soon sight the necessity of having such a man in the line daily; for with Dixon, the premier of the league, on deck, Jim Brown is too valuable to the team to warm the bench, and we predict that he will not.

Indianapolis Freeman, Indianapolis, IN

Saturday, May 8, 1920, Page 4, Column 2