

EASTERN SPORT WORLD

BY WHITE

Rube Settles the East

Little did baseball fans think when Uncle Rube Foster blew in town Monday, two weeks ago, he primarily came on a peace mission to straighten out the east in some complicated baseball matters that had been hanging fire for years between the western wizard and John Connors of the Bacharach Giants. But such is the case, with the result that Connors came across and is now in sympathy with the activities of the west. At 9 p. m. Wednesday evening of last week Rube handed Connors a receipt for $500, which identifies him with the new league out west. Connie Savage, of Teaneck's Bears, was the prime mover at the peace conference, which lasted nearly 24 hours. This state of affairs will bring all of the western teams identified with the Negro National League east this year after July 1, the majority of which will be seen in action at Dyckman Oval

Chicago Defender, Chicago, IL

Saturday, May 8, 1920, Page 9, Column 4