

TIGERS STAGE REAL THRILLER IN THE TENTH

If the finish of yesterday's game between the Chicago Giants and Tacoma Tigers had occurred in a regulation game authorized and sanctioned by the Northwestern league and the National association, it would have been termed the most sensational session of the season.

Since it occurred in a practice game, after several hundred fans had huddled in overcoats through 10 long innings and had lost some of their enthusiasm, it doesn't attract so much attention.

The game had gone into the 10th with the score 2 and 2. Telford, who relieved Eley in the sixth, weakened slightly, and Hill slammed a homer over the right field boards after Pitcher Johnson had received a pass. The 10th opened for Tigers with a 4 to 2 score.

Moran fouled out. Leard slammed a grounder through pitcher and second. Dean fouled out. Carman got in front of the ball, and there were two on bases. Skeeter Bigbee was up to bat. Rube Foster brought Gans from left field to replace Johnson. Gans is a left-hander, so Russ Hall pulled out Bigbee and sent in Healey.

Healey singled, bringing Leard across the rubber. Thompson drew a pass. Rube Foster, as eager to win the game as though it were a championship contest, sent Gans back to the garden and returned Johnson to the slab.

The bases were full, with two out. Score 4 to 3. Southerland, from Kansas City, went in to bat for Maher. Southerland waited until he drew two and two, then swung.

It was a mighty effort. But the pill dropped three inches out of the plane in which Southerland's bat was banging ethereal atoms. And the game was over.

Yesterday's was a rattling good contest. Eley allowed the Giants only three hits in six innings. Had the Tigers shown more brain and less bone while base-running, they would have won the game.
