Meyers of the Nationals has lost his batting eye. He was on his way to the Nashville Abbator to find him another one.

* * *

Manager Stratton says he will either pitch Moorman or Venson against the Nationals when they meet again.

* * *

Ellis is going to burn the corner of that third bag if they don't keep it wet.

* * *

Clay Carpenter bought some new shoes and said he would have to have some black sox to wear with them or else they might hurt.

* * *

Sam Moorman the southern beauty formerly of the Black Sox pitching staff, has now retired from baseball and is training his younger brother, who lies close around the top of the Sox headline.

* * *

Manager Stratton says if his bunch don't get crippled it will be easy sailing for the Black Sox again. Three times pennant winners.

The Capital City League.

At Greenwood June 3, 1917.

Manager Stratton and his deer-footed Black Sox romped on the Greenwood diamond and defeated the Maroons 8 to 5. Both Stratton and Battle worked hard and were well supported by their teammates. Battle is a youngster that Manager Whitt has found and with a good catcher to train him he will be a star twirler in a short time. Manager Stratton has also gotten a young slapper, who has a lot of speed and good curves. 225 fans witnessed the game Sunday and cheered both teams as they pulled off their sensational plays.

The North against the South.

Rube Foster's head work, wins for the giants.

Both the Maroons and Black Sox, played a fine game Sunday, June the 3rd at Greenwood Park. The Sox winning 8 to 5. It looked at first like a pitchers battle between Stratton and Battle, but after Walter Patton who was playing short for the Maroons, had figured in several sensational plays he fell asleep, while three Soxs raced home, and sinched the game. Battle tightened up after the fourth inning, and allowed no more scoring, while Stratton allowed only two runs after the first inning.

A queer play bobbled up in the third inning, when with runner on base, Whitsey lifted a high fly to infield, which was dropped, and after a protest the empire declared the batter safe at first. But if we read the rules right, the batter was out. This same play was put in action a few days ago at Athletic Park, and after a lengthy consultation between the two empires, Gabby Street, the batter was called out, and had Kores been doubled at second, the Vols would have lost the game.

Mr. Blane Boyd, viewed the game at Greenwood Park from the grand stand, and spoke very highly of both teams, but emphatically denounced the fly ball decision in the third inning.

Rube Foster's American Giants, won a close game 1 to 0 from the Cuban Giants. Redding pitched great ball for the Giants, with Petway behind the bat. The Lincoln Giants, took to Bill Ritters offering, and runned him from the mound, and won 7 to 2 .Ritter formerly pitched for John McGraws Giants.

Jewels A. B. C's defeated the Nebraska Indians some 6 to 4. Gatewood twirled for the A. B. C's, while Watkins worked for the Red Men.

Brandon of the Black Sox, now pitching for Taylor's A. B. C's, won from Frankfort 7 to 5, and allowed only five hits.

Allison of Nashville, has enlisted with the Union Giants, Chicago, and is doing receiving duty in great style.

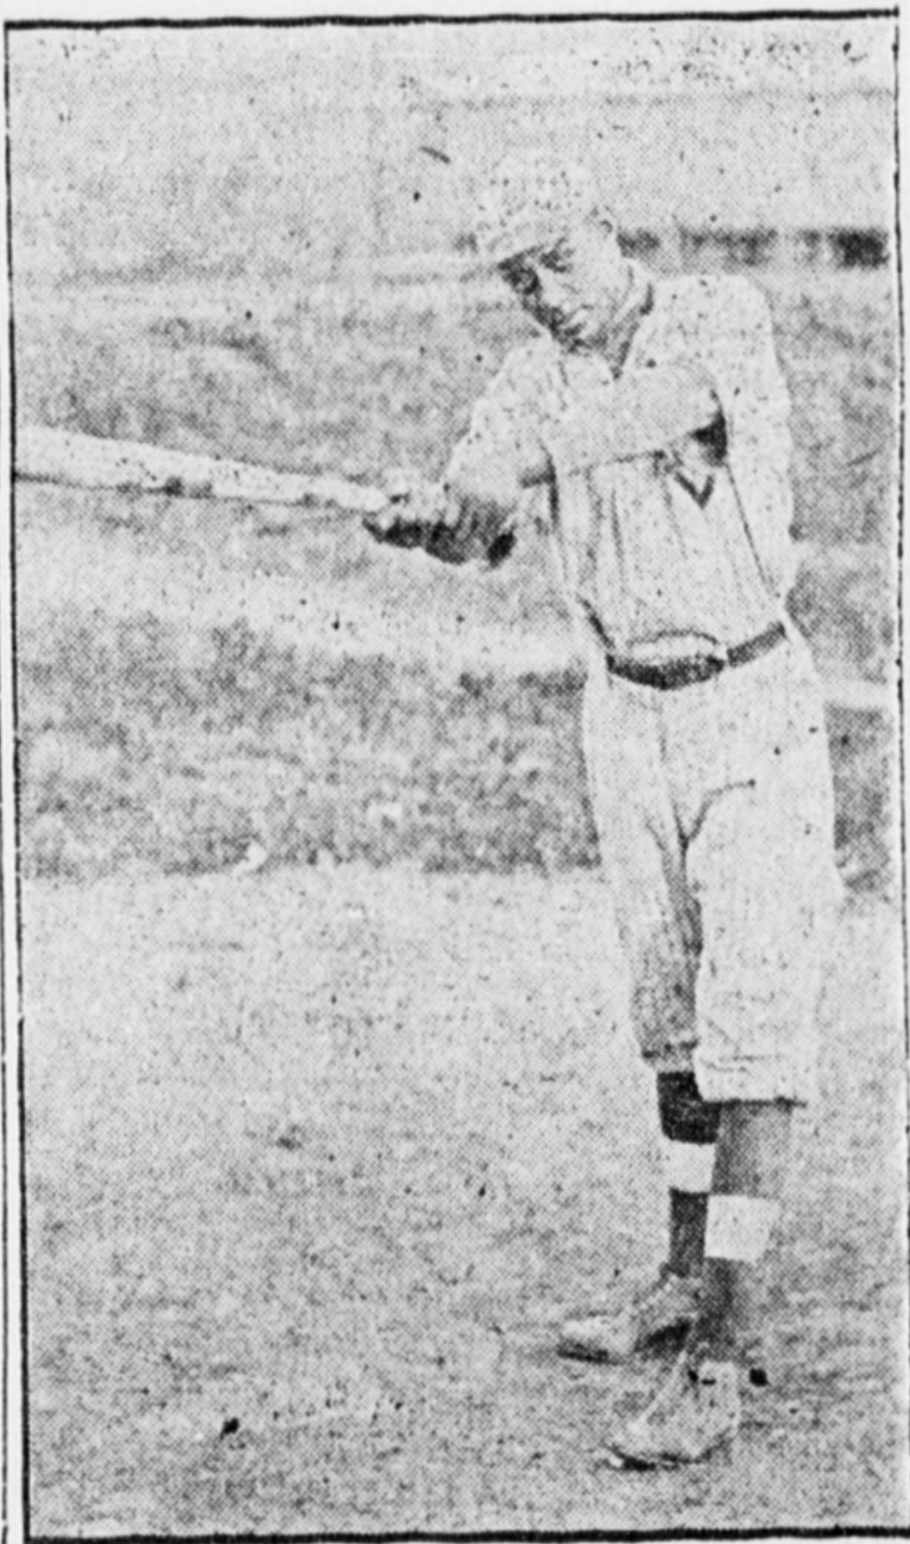

If you want to be sure that you get what you order, just walk in a Cedar Street Cafe, and order a small steak.

Door-keeper Frye of the Black Sox is some lengthy guy. Sunday just after the game, this Mr. Frye fell down, and was half way home. And we must say, that he is long in this world if he dies tomorrow.

Mr. H. T. McGavock is the mainstay of the famous Black Sox, when it comes to fielding and has been for the past five years. He is a daring base runner, circling the cushion like Ty Cobb and as a batter he is right there hitting the ball on the snout, just like Tris Speaker. It will be mighty hard for any team to defeat the Black Sox with such base runners as McGavock, Stratton, Ware and Carpenter. This quartette is hitting above the three hundred mark.

J. Phillips, playing short for the Sox is a promising ball player, and if Miller would take half the pains in developing him as he did some of his old heads, he would find a wonder in this young fellow.
