The North against the South.

Rube Foster's head work, wins for the giants.

Both the Maroons and Black Sox, played a fine game Sunday, June the 3rd at Greenwood Park. The Sox winning 8 to 5. It looked at first like a pitchers battle between Stratton and Battle, but after Walter Patton who was playing short for the Maroons, had figured in several sensational plays he fell asleep, while three Soxs raced home, and sinched the game. Battle tightened up after the fourth inning, and allowed no more scoring, while Stratton allowed only two runs after the first inning.

A queer play bobbed up in the third inning, when with runner on base, Whitsey lifted a high fly to infield, which was dropped, and after a protest the empire declared the batter safe at first. But if we read the rules right, the batter was out. This same play was put in action a few days ago at Athletic Park, and after a lengthy consultation between the two empires, Gabby Street, the batter was called out, and had Kores been doubled at second, the Vols would have lost the game.

Mr. Blane Boyd, viewed the game at Greenwood Park from the grand stand, and spoke very highly of both teams, but emphatically denounced the fly ball decision in the third inning.

Rube Foster's American Giants, won a close game 1 to 0 from the Cuban Giants. Redding pitched great ball for the Giants, with Petway behind the bat. The Lincoln Giants, took to Bill Ritters offering, and runned him from the mound, and won 7 to 2 .Ritter formerly pitched for John McGraws Giants.

Jewels A. B. C's defeated the Nebraska Indians some 6 to 4. Gatewood twirled for the A. B. C's, while Watkins worked for the Red Men.

Brandon of the Black Sox, now pitching for Taylor's A. B. C's, won from Frankfort 7 to 5, and allowed only five hits.

Allison of Nashville, has enlisted with the Union Giants, Chicago, and is doing receiving duty in great style.

If you want to be sure that you get what you order, just walk in a Cedar Street Cafe, and order a small steak.

Door-keeper Frye of the Black Sox is some lengthy guy. Sunday just after the game, this Mr. Frye fell down, and was half way home. And we must say, that he is long in this world if he dies tomorrow.
