

They came, they played, they conquered. The Leland Giants of Chicago came to St. Paul last week to cross bats with the champions of the world, the St. Paul Gophers. They played a series of five games, beginning last Sunday when the Gophers won, but after that the local team fell down and the Giants won the other four games and carried off the championship, very much to the disappointment of the local fans. However, the lovers of base ball were highly entertained, and hope for better luck for the local team next time.
