

American Giants Give Dayton Marcos Ball Lesson in 7 to 4 Game

Squeeze and Other Nifty Plays Are Perpetrated Behind Williams

American Giants Park, Sept. 14.—Baseball pupils hailing from the town made famous by the Wright brothers and National Cash Register Company were given a lesson in the national pastime by Professor Foster's graduates Sunday afternoon, 7-4. It reminded one of the ancient remark of taking candy from babies. String Bean Williams heaved for the Giants and most of the time lobbed the ball over, making his teammates do most of the work. Torrenti and Gans could have used a couple of horses in the sixth inning, but he tightened up and, with the aid of Eggleston, who I suspect had a mental lapse and tried to pull some small town stuff, forgetting there were two umpires, one on the bases for the express purpose of detecting such mistakes. He forgot to plant his No. 12 on second base in his wild dash on a regular triple, enabling String Beans to emerge from an inning in which the first two men hit for extra bases without being scored on. The seventh inning was the Marcos' lucky inning. They were lucky to get one run, and lucky to get the Giants out in their half.

Francis tried to show the S. T. B.'s how to get in the way of a soft pitch, but Gockel would not stand for the teaching of any bad habits. Professor Foster, in order to make the game interesting, gave Williams a rest after the fourth inning. Not String Beans—he was resting all through the game. I mean the shortstop, and gave the fans a chance to look at a recruit from Grand Rapids named Norman. He got one ball all afternoon; the rest he waved at; the balls, not understanding signs, kept on to the outfield. Charleston pulled one for the books when he raced over to deep left center and speared the ball with his gloved hand. String Beans saw to it that all hands were kept busy. Charleston ran in from center field and backed up the catcher on the triple that was hit over Gans' head in the sixth inning. Outside of seeing Speaker, Felch, Cobb, Roush & Co. play about a hundred games a year, I don't think I am competent enough to judge the rarity of that play. Maybe they do it sometimes when I am absent. Taylor, our old friend from Indianapolis, who played second base for the visitors, was the whole works offensively and defensively for the Marcos. Dismuke was going great until Rube gave his orders in the seventh to go over the top. Before the smoke of the inning was over he was among the missing. In the eighth De Mose singled, stole second; Torrenti tripled to left center and kept on home while the Marco's catcher was trying to get the ball from under Ald. Jackson's feet. Suspecting that the fans would like to know how all the runs were made, I submit the following score:

Giants.

	r.	h.	po.	a.
Gans, rf	0	1	1	0
De Moss, 2b.....	2	2	6	3
Charleston, cf	1	1	3	0
Torrenti, lf	2	1	2	1
J. Brown, c.....	1	1	1	0
Dixon, c	0	0	0	1
Farncis, 2b	0	1	0	2
Grant, 1b	1	2	11	2
B. Williams, ss.....	0	0	2	2
Norman, ss	0	1	0	1
S. Williams, p.....	0	1	1	4
<hr/>
Total	7	11	27	16

Marcos.

G. Brown, 1b.....	1	3	12	0
Dewitt, 3b	0	0	2	1
Taylor, 2b	1	3	1	6
Warfield, ss	0	1	4	1
Eggleston, rf	0	2	0	0
Alexander, cf	0	2	0	0
Hill, lf	0	0	1	0
Murray, c	1	0	4	2
Dismukes, p	1	0	0	1
Rile, p	0	0	0	1

	—	—	—	—
Total	4	11	24	12

Giants	0	1	0	0	0	1	3	2	*—7
Marcos	0	0	0	1	1	0	1	0	1—4

Errors—B. Williams, Norman. Hill, Dewitt (2), Dismukes. Three-base hits—Torrienti, Alexander. Bases on balls—Off Williams, 5; off Dismukes, 3. Struck out—By Williams, 1; by Dismukes, 2; by Rile, 1.

Union Giants Shut Out

Michigan City, Ind., Sept. 14.—The Haskel & Barker ball club defeated the Union Giants of Chicago, 6 to 3, Sunday, in deciding game of three-game series. Score by innings:

Un. Giants	0	1	0	1	0	0	0	1	0	—3	9	3
H. & B.	..2	0	1	1	0	2	0	0	*	—6	10	1

Batteries—Wilson and White; Miller and Eggleston.

The Chicago Whip, Chicago, IL

Saturday, September 20, 1919, Page 7, Columns 3 to 7