

NOTES OF THE GAME

By Julius Culpepper.

The first three men went out in order and it was a game of ball from then on. They played the old pastime according to Hoyle, that is, they played it every minute.

There were about 8000 bugs out there and they all went home well pleased. Malarchers three bagger scored the only run and Torrenti's drive to right was foul by about ten inches and you know that Hooks hit three times safely and all in a row.

The Islanders had men on first base and on second in both the eight and the last half of the ninth but failed to get anybody around. Williams just wouldn't let them. That's all there was to that. But you have to hand it to Merino. He had them at his mercy from the first inning on.

Hooks Jiminez got a great hand in the eighth with men on first and second and he rewarded the fish by hitting safely between first and second. A fast man could have scored on the hit but that runner was to slow, but at that those Cubans improve each trip.
