

LINCOLN GIANTS TO PLAY AT URBITA PARK

Will Tackle Sam Agnew's Winter League Team Next Sunday afternoon—One of the Best Teams in America.

Unless the weather man interferes, there is going to be a real baseball game on the Urbita Stars diamond next Sunday when the famous Lincoln Giants of New York will tackle the Urbita Stars.

This team of colored men has gone through its schedule so far on the coast without losing a game. It is regarded as the greatest aggregation of colored ball players ever gotten together.

Los Angeles teams, made up of national, American and coast league stars have fallen before this team of ebony-colored diamond stars and they are coming out to take Sam Agnew's team's number next Sunday afternoon.

Hubbard, the great pitcher of the Lincoln Giants, is rated as one of the best in America. He ranks with Alexander and the other great stars. Chet Thomas, of the Cleveland world's champions, who has played against the Lincoln Giants, says if it were possible to give the Giants a place in either major league with three other pitchers in the same class as Hubbard the team would make every white team in either league hustle. "The Giants would not be last," is the way Thomas puts it.

These same Giants may play in Riverside on Saturday afternoon, December 13, if the game can be arranged by Manager Sam Agnew, of the Urbana Stars.
