

HOSP DROPS FLY AND PANTAGES AGAIN LOSE

Chicago Colored Tribe Whams
Palmer's Outfit Twice in as
Many Days; Scores, 3-2
And 4-3

Until yesterday afternoon, Franz Hosp had left-fielded all winter for Will Palmer, without the semblance of an error against his record.* Then came the sudden, little muff of a weak fly ball and Franz' record was marred and Palmer's ball crew lost to the Chicago Giants again.

The result of last week's series leaves no question as to the superiority of the two ball clubs which have been performing out at Athletic park. The colored Giants again took two straight victories, proving conclusively that they have an edge on Palmer's Pantages array.

Yesterday's score was 3 to 2, with the Giants winning run coming across in the ninth, after Duncan had doubled and advanced to third, whence he ambled home as Hosp let Bachman's pop fly dribble through his hands.

Previously the Giants' two runs had been earned, while San Diego counted twice early on Williams' wildness, the dusky hurler forcing in two runs with passes, bases filled.
