

A World's Record Falls.

It's pretty late in the year for base ball dope, but here's something really remarkable—a world's record, in fact, with some to spare. Bob Harmon, the Liberal young man who pitches for the St. Louis national leaguers, pitched a game on Sunday, Nov. 5, at Kansas City for John Kling's all-star team against the Royal Giants, a negro team, the game being played to decide the championship of Kansas City. Harmon, in the nine innings, struck out 25 of the negro sluggers, whose playing has been the sensation of the year at Kansas City. The previous strike-out record for 9 innings is 20, established by Jack Root of the Iola, Kans., league team in 1904. Harmon did not win his game against the negroes, however. The game was called on account of darkness, in the 9th, with the score 1 to 1.

Each team got its one run on errors.

It is worthy of note that Root also failed to win his game when he established his record in 1904. He was defeated by Sedalia, 8 to 4.
